1.

At the outset, the telephone conversation with Eugene Perez on February 27, 2003 wherein the homopolymer of Example 3 was clarified to be the elected species designated in Paper No. 9 is acknowledged.

2.

Applicant's election with traverse of the homopolymer in Example 3 as the elected species in Paper No. 9 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground that the requirement is inconsistent with the Unity of Invention Requirements of MPEP 1893.03. This is not found persuasive because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed error(s) in the election of species requirement.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

3.

The revised version of claim 3 now lacks a formula and is too indefinite to classify. Accordingly, the claim has been withdrawn from consideration.

Claims 1, 2 and 6 read on the elected species and are being examined at this time.

4.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1, 2 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Art Unit: 1713

Claims 1 and 6: at lines 4 and 5 of claim 1 and line 23 of claim 6 the underlining of text is improper.

Claim 6: at line 9: the recitation "1 to 100" lacks basis.

5.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1,2 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Araki et al., US 5,670,593.

Araki teaches fluorine containing allyl ether copolymers primarily comprising repeating units of instant formula (2) [column 6, line 8 et seq.]. The remaining repeating units can be $-CF_2 - CF_2 -$ as disclosed e.g. in formula (II) at column 6, line 31. Such tetrafluoroethylene groups are encompassed by both instant divalent components A and A¹. Accordingly, Araki teaches copolymers containing the major monomer unit and a second monomer unit containing a functionality within the class of the instant monomer units. The copolymers of Araki are clearly closely related in chemical composition to the instant polymers. The functional groups of said copolymers render them useful precursors for a variety of thermoplastic compositions [column 5, lines 30-43]. It would have been obvious to prepare the instant allyl ether polymers in the expectation of obtaining precursors for thermoplastic compositions because Araki teaches polymers of closely related structure suitable for the intended disclosed purpose.
